DISCUSSION/RATIONALE:

The Spring Lake PCB site consist of a small dammed lake with an intermittent stream named Cedar Creek. Most of the area is parkland or other publicly owned property. Sampling of fish tissue and sediments from the lake revealed sporadic low levels of pesticides and PCBs. Fishing has be banned in the lake.

Since there are no identifiable sources of the pollutants and no properly identified background samples, this site does not qualify for further Superfund action. There is no identifiable groundwater, soil or air pathway that relates to this site. With both fishing and swimming banned, there is no direct human threat associated with the site
